

Spring Medicine

It is a necessity with nearly everybody. The run-down, tired condition at this season is due to the winter and spring winds which have blown from the north and west, and which have dried up the soil and the vegetation. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, creates a good appetite, cures indigestion and constipation, gives health to the system and drives out all poisons. It is the only medicine that cures the skin and the blood.

THE POOR MIC-MACS.

Remnants of a Once Powerful Tribe in Nova Scotia.

Owners of the Bull Generations Ago Are Begging To-Day—Living on the Wreckage of a Once Powerful Tribe.

When our intrepid forefathers first landed on the shores of Nova Scotia, they found a race of strong, like-minded Indians, to whom, for want of a better name, they gave that of the Mic-Macs.

The Mic-Macs were strong, powerful representatives of the Indian race, friendly in disposition, but quick to take offense if injured—feet-footed and perfect representatives of God's nobility.

Wherever the race of whites has come in contact with the red man, the degradation and demoralization of the latter have been complete. To-day any one visiting Nova Scotia and looking at the very small remnants of a once powerful tribe would not believe that they had once been owners of the lands which the Canadian Government to-day allows them to occupy but a small portion of.

Where they formerly ruled with no one to deny their right they now pass from house to house in the towns and villages of Nova Scotia and beg for food, clothing and money with which to buy rum.

Visiting Pictou, Nova Scotia, recently I was invited to visit the reservation upon which the Mic-Macs Indians live. It is situated at the Indian Cove, just across the harbor from Pictou, and a very beautiful spot, with a view across the bay to the mountains of the west.

A short walk through the woods and we arrived at the cove and saw before us the dwellings of the Mic-Macs, their tribe and their families. Until within a few years the Mic-Macs occupied wigwags, as their forefathers had done before them, but a few years ago they began to build little huts, and now but two or three of the original wigwags remain.

The chiefs do absolutely nothing but loaf and occasionally fish, while the squaws and little ones make willow baskets which they sell in Pictou, receiving a fair price for their handiwork, which is immediately sold upon by the head of the household, who buys his rum and carries it to the camp, where the chiefs make night rides until the bottle is empty.

Armed with my photographic apparatus I located in front of one of the wigwags and caught a picture. I supposed that the wigwag was vacant, and was greatly astonished when after taking the picture the chief came out, and, as I saw, was thrown one side and a squaw and three of her children emerged. By an offer of a quarter to the chief I secured the picture. The wigwag was occupied by a family of five, consisting of a man, a woman and three children. The man was a chief, and the woman was his wife. The children were their own.
